GINETTA

THE BRITISH MOTORSPORT COMPANY

GINETTA - THE BRITISH MOTORSPORT COMPANY:

Ginetta is a British sports racing car company founded over 60 years ago. The company was acquired by Le Mans winning entrepreneur, Lawrence Tomlinson in 2005 and since then has been transformed under his ownership. Ginetta has grown significantly in recent years to become a formidable Motorsport Group providing racers, drivers and enthusiasts a comprehensive range of products and services. A key division is Want2race the leading premium track day and driving experience company in the UK. Want2race provide over 30 track days a year on the best circuits in the UK and Europe to drive your own car, or can provide an arrive-and-drive package in purpose built race cars. Want2Race also offers customers a turn key service of vehicle storage, preparation, transport as well as driver training all on one site. At its core, Ginetta continues to design and develop world beating race car technology at its HQ near Leeds. This performance engineering is directly shared across all race cars and series including the new GT Academy car which has been designed by the same team as the Ginetta LMP1 car. With the majority of British sportscar companies now owned by overseas investors, above all Ginetta remains proudly British, with a down to earth family ethos.
